

- What am I making? - A personal portfolio with an emphasis on the computer projects I've created so far. It would also include some information about my passion and hobbies.
- Who are the audiences? - Anyone, but this could serve the purpose of demonstrating my skills and experiences to interviewers and recruiters.
- An overview of the website or you could call it the index; a (perhaps roughly) complete list of my projects with descriptions and links to repositories (and perhaps gif demos); a page of personal information (like a complete, long resume); a miscellaneous page for other facts about me (planning to make most of that up for the time being)
- Color scheme - predominantly light blue as the background (light colors make it look fresh and flat)
- Layout - predominantly one column, maybe a sidebar (so that's two columns) for some kind of navigation
- Page count - eight pages planned for now
